31. “Richard Avedon: Nothing Personal” at Pace/MacGill

Photographer Richard Avedon and writer and social critic James Baldwin were high school friends. In 1964, they teamed up on the book Nothing Personal, examining the state of life in the US during the Civil Rights era through Avedon’s photographs and an accompanying four-part essay by Baldwin. Long out of print, it will be reissued by Taschen in January. In the meantime, Pace and Pace/MacGill, now representing the Avedon Foundation, presents the first exhibition based on the book, with photographs and archival materials.

537 West 24th Street, November 17, 2017–January 13, 2018
